It was indeed a woeful picture of American womanhood that Emma yoldman, the acknowledged woman exponent of anarchy, painted in her lecture on the so-called white slave traffic, at Eastman's hall last night. She talked plain about the affairs of unfortunate women, but in summing up she charged all their misfortunes to economic conditions and their ignorance of matters of sex.

She said that there was not one American mother out of a thousand who would stand by her daughter when in trouble. Of course this extravagant declaration, like others made by Miss Goldman, was applauded.

JACK FROST IS MUCH FEARED IN ORCHARDS

Dr. E. D. Ball of the Agricultural coliege at Logan, who has just returned from a trip to St. George, says that if a heavy frost should come at this time the damage to the fruit throughout the state would be very heavy. The apricots, peaches, plums and other fruits are in the right condition to be ruined by frost. Cherries are already damaged, he says, and in about the weeks emples will be in and in about two weeks apples will be in such a condition as to be easily injured by frost. In all parts of the state the critical period has been reached. The fruit is in full bloom, and it will be susceptible to frost for about two or three weeks. There will be comparatively few cherries this season. The cold weather nipped the buds long before they were ready to come out.
